

General.

You do not know me, but I, of course, know of you. I hope this letter finds you swiftly. I send word of a Wintermarker – one of the Suaq – who recently came across the border from Sermersuaq with several others seeking refuge from the war. Like so many others we are providing aid for as they find their way to safety, this one had become a thrall of the enemy. However, this one requested to speak to you by name and claimed to have a message for you – a message from a herald of Irrah Harah. They had sworn an oath to recount this message only to you – so they were directed to Anvil. I send this missive as swiftly as I can, but expect it to reach you only slightly ahead of them as they marched with a purpose I have not seen of those ground down by war.

Bondsplitter Dattita, Captain of the Winter Sun.