

Maistir Dubtair,

Your orders are to head along the road the Urizen call the Legacy Way towards the mithril mines we have captured. Bring your forces with you and stay alert for the sentinels who still hold out in the mountains. When you reach the resupply depot at the place they call Transcendence Stair, check in with the quartermaster and rest your forces. Further orders will be dispatched to you tomorrow.

Maistir Culwenna

Menos,

I have sent this missive as it is known you will be in Anvil by now, and I am unsure where the Legacy's owner (former of course) might be, if they have been lost in the fight for Spiral, or heading to Anvil. Myself, my coven and several refugees are hiding in the mountain valleys close to the Legacy. We have observed the Grendel's movements from our vantage point, but have little understanding of what they are planning, although it is evident that the Legacy has fallen and the workers are currently enslaved. We understand that the way point on the Legacy Trail is being used as a command post for the Grendel military forces in the area. Alas, we lack the numbers or Courage to attempt to get closer and investigate further.

Perhaps the Sentinel Gate and the Heroes will find a conjunction that favours further investigation.

I wish that the Net aligns to our cause. We will head north and aim to escape Spiral for the mountains of Zenith.

Telos, of the Legacy Guard