

Artem of Temeschwar,

You are invited to the Hall of Worlds at eleven hours past noon on the first night of the Winter Solstice summit. You will be given the opportunity to choose from two boons offered by Callidus, Prince of the Argent Tontine, in payment for your services towards the organisation of the Game of Risk held during the Autumn Equinox of the three hundred and eighty fourth year by the Empire's reckoning.

There will be two rewards offered – two rings that were forged by the master jeweller Duchát of the careful things. Cormack Dunn will be offered the first choice between the two rings but he will be offered a third option. A box containing something which is only of value to them. If he chooses to take the boxes then he will receive whatever is inside, but you will take the first choice of the rings.

I look forward to seeing you in the Hall of Worlds,
Florin of the many coins