

Estaban i Ezmara i Erigo of the Brazen Paridor.

Thank you for taking the time to speak to me and for your prosperity. I am afraid that finding the Jotun with the spear I spoke about has been harder than I expected. Although I have several contacts across the Mourn, none of them had seen sight of the Barbarian for several months.

However, since you had paid me more than I asked, I was able to use some of that money to procure the information I needed. The latest report I have is less than a month old so I trust that it will still be up to date.

I believe that she is with an Elite group who are guarding Mournstead. I went there once in my youth, but do not know it well. Mournstead is in Liath's Ring in Liathaven.

I know this is close to Liath's heart, although it is not in the Vallorn, the Barbarians have controlled this area for a while and the landskeepers have not been able to visit the dolmens there.

If you do not know the Vallorn well, I suggest speaking to the Navarr before you travel there.

My thanks again for your prosperity and I wish you all the best with your quest
