

9914.1 Ames the Amiable
Matthew Bambridge

Even in successful warfare, great confusion reigns, and nowhere more so than at sea. It is some few days after the fleet returns, that one of the most trusted guardians who serves on your ship makes their way to find you. They tell of how a Grendel Summer Mage – she called herself a Servant of Samradh - tried to bargain for her life, offering a key that they said they had from a Summer Eternal known to the Empire, that they believed would be useful in the Empire. That guardian did not bargain but killed the orc and brought back the key – knowing only that it was clearly magical in nature. Warning you to be vigilant your warrior bids you take the key to Anvil and find out what use it may be.

Mechanical Effect: There is a magical item phys rep and ribbon and small card provided with this description. Identify magic item can be used to discern its purpose.

OOO Note: You have been selected by your downtime action and your PID (the newest on the system that took that same action) to receive this opportunity. You may roleplay with it however you like, but please do ensure that the item is taken forward into the game in some way.