In the heart of New Dunhearth stands the central statue of Lorenzo's Legacy of Vigilance.

It has always attracted comment - between the six arms holding a warhammer and battleaxe aloft and the octopus that coils around its left shoulder, it is clearly not a depiction of any Hero of Wintermark.

Many feel uncomfortable doing business in its shadow, despite the inscriptions around the base emphasising the virtues of Wisdom, Courage and Vigilance.

During the last few months this discomfort has been multiplied by the denunciation of its architect by the Imperial Synod.

Many merchants have started to imply that unless the statue is removed or altered they will take their business elsewhere.
