

Crun

This, then, is our pact. Bring everything that you can from Holberg that concerns the vallorn. Bring only those you trust with your life.

Do not come to Reikos, for the Stone Joad will not recognise you and will take their time destroying you.

Come to Eleraël that is in Broceliande, where my people will find you; they will be busy in the forest until Autumn at least.

My people will find you. Surrender to them, ask for no quarter but ensure they see this letter. They will bring you to me.

if you have been successful, then I will take you into my service - you and any others you bring with you. I will give you a home; you will belong to my family, and your children will be true Druj. You will be one with the tribe. You will be one of the people at last and the lies of the Empire will be forgotten.

But be sure that you bring what we have agreed. If you come to Eleraël with nothing, then you will be nothing, and I will have you skinned and a banner made from your hide.

Ghulai "Greenmask"