

A Polite Offer

During the season, while the armies of the Empire struggled against the vile Druj, and soft-spoken Civil Servants visited prominent Spires to assess how they would evacuate Morrow, another kind of visitor was seen abroad there. Appearing as quiet, pale Merrow, lesser Heralds of Phaleron walk the mountain paths and valley passes, visiting all the Spires of the territory and presenting their occupants with a choice. The “Canterspire Branch Library” is protected, they say, and they will help you get there, along with the most treasured writings you and they can carry. If you wish, your character may have chosen to accompany one of these creatures offering the chance to evacuate to the Canterspire.

During the season, the armies of Urizen, the League, and Varushka, accompanied by thousands of Eleonaris’ champions, fought a ferocious battle in defence of the Canterspire, and drove the Druj back eastwards. You may have witnessed this battle or arrived after it; if you did travel to the Canterspire, you’ve been safe within its crystal-clad walls since then.
