

The last season you have had troubled dreams. You wake up in the night, every night, having dreamt of drowning in your sleep. The dreams have troubled you and you have cannot get the sign of the Merrow catching your gaze when you cast Skein of Years. Having felt yourself die from drowning every night, you started to try to avoid sleeping to make sure that you did not go through the experience again.

As the Summer Soltice draws near the curse seems to wear off, this means that on the Friday night will be your first night of uninterrupted sleep for ninety days.

OOC:

You have been under the effects of a rank 10 night curse since you cast Skein of Years on the Ancient Icon last season. This has had no effect on you other than to deprive you of sleep for three months, which is bad enough.

Investigating the icon in more detail may give some sort of clue to the origin of this item, but then it may also cause your dreams to haunt you again.