

To the new Archmage of Winter

I note that you thrive and gain power under the curse offered to you by the Hungry Wolf. Does power suit you?

As ever I find myself writing on behalf of Yaroslav who travels to Anvil this season. If you wish to discuss how you plan to help the Empire learn more through the suffering the Empty Chamber can offer now that you hold sway, I recommend you seek him out.

He, and another colleague of ours who understands that there are blessings in the withering of winter, Amaruq, will visit the camps of House Rakshasa and House Remys in Dawn, around eight on the first evening of the Winter Solstice.

I encourage you to seek him there. He will want your aid in encouraging the Generals of the Empire to make use of the boon granted to them last Summer. Though we aspire to the Winter of the Empty Wastes, He and I, we are impatient to see the Empire recognise the help that is offered by the Empty Chamber, and though the Wolf would not care how soon it is used, we do.

Ania of Necropolis
Agent of Sorin