

Gregor De Rondell

Noble Knight! I thanked you enough I hope, at the Solstice, for your part in keeping me alive, and so I will not begin again now.

I write only to let you know that Laurel and I, together with her cousin Adiran, who we have recruited into Jaufre's place in the Order, intend to come to Anvil and meet our friends - and we hold you most highly amongst them - in The Forge at half past eight on Friday evening of the Equinox. Together we can talk about whether any conjunctions offer potential to fight more creatures together during this festival.

There will be a handful of those involved in slaying the Drake invited, and also a Urizeni that we met at the Solstice -who had to be at a wedding (I cannot say I would put Love before Glory myself, but I won't gainsay another's choice to do so). If each of you brought a friend or two along we should be a merry group - and can always move from The Forge to a more comfortable location once we are all gathered if space is limited.

I look forward to meeting you again

Yours,

Lady Heliabel Lionsgate