

Cut or tear off this strip to have a completely IC document

OC Note: Come to the Skirmish Field (beyond the Sentinel Gate) between 5:30pm and 6:00pm on Friday prior to time-in to receive your token and invite if you want to take part. IC you will have received these items from a herald of Barien prior to time-in.

---

Dear Esteemed Citizen,

I am Revel, herald of Barien, the Iron Duke. At this upcoming summit a tourney will be organised in the name of the Lord of Crossroads on Saturday evening, and mortals will have to compete with one another to gain favours to enter the tourney. As a mortal who holds favour with the realm of summer, I am asking for your assistance in adjudicating the run up to the tournament, as the heralds will not be able to be present in Anvil for the entire duration to do so.

What I am requesting is that you ensure the correct spirit is enforced in the competition for the favours to enter the tourney. The rules are thus;

- Favours should only be won and lost through planned combats (duels, tourneys etc.) - no trading, purchasing or theft
- Competitors should not turn down a challenge from another competitor
- Before any combat competitors should determine how many favours are being wagered - any challenge should result in at least 1 favour being won/lost, but higher stakes can be agreed
- Competitors should not repeatedly challenge the same person; once a bout is concluded the challengers should fight others before challenging each other again

- Once a competitor has no favours remaining they cannot re-enter the competition and are effectively out of the running

It is not my expectation that you witness or judge all bouts, but watch for any flagrant rulebreaking and be available to adjudicate disputes and suchlike if they arise.

As recompense should you take up this offer you will be given a free invitation to compete in the Pinnacle Tourney, to be either used for yourself or given to another person of your choosing.

Should you wish to take me up on this offer, one of the heralds will be available prior to the formal start of the summit. You will be given your invitation and a token to show that you speak with the authority of the Iron Duke on the matter of this tourney. Before the beginning of the tourney you will be given the chance to vouch for the conduct of the competitors or denounce any of them if you feel it necessary based on what you have seen.

It is entirely up to you whether you wish to accept this offer - if you prefer to decline and do not wish to take part, my lord will take no offence. The offer is made to you freely.

Yours,

Revel

Herald of Barien

Cut or tear off this strip to have a completely IC document

OC Note: Come to the Skirmish Field (beyond the Sentinel Gate) between 5:30pm and 6:00pm on Friday prior to time-in to receive your token and invite if you want to take part. IC you will have received these items from a herald of Barien prior to time-in.

---

Dear Esteemed Citizen,

I am Revel, herald of Barien, the Iron Duke. At this upcoming summit a tourney will be organised in the name of the Lord of Crossroads on Saturday evening, and mortals will have to compete with one another to gain favours to enter the tourney. As a mortal who holds favour with the realm of summer, I am asking for your assistance in adjudicating the run up to the tournament, as the heralds will not be able to be present in Anvil for the entire duration to do so.

What I am requesting is that you ensure the correct spirit is enforced in the competition for the favours to enter the tourney. The rules are thus;

- Favours should only be won and lost through planned combats (duels, tourneys etc.) - no trading, purchasing or theft
- Competitors should not turn down a challenge from another competitor
- Before any combat competitors should determine how many favours are being wagered - any challenge should result in at least 1 favour being won/lost, but higher stakes can be agreed
- Competitors should not repeatedly challenge the same person; once a bout is concluded the challengers should fight others before challenging each other again

- Once a competitor has no favours remaining they cannot re-enter the competition and are effectively out of the running

It is not my expectation that you witness or judge all bouts, but watch for any flagrant rulebreaking and be available to adjudicate disputes and suchlike if they arise.

As recompense should you take up this offer you will be given a free invitation to compete in the Pinnacle Tourney, to be either used for yourself or given to another person of your choosing.

Should you wish to take me up on this offer, one of the heralds will be available prior to the formal start of the summit. You will be given your invitation and a token to show that you speak with the authority of the Iron Duke on the matter of this tourney. Before the beginning of the tourney you will be given the chance to vouch for the conduct of the competitors or denounce any of them if you feel it necessary based on what you have seen.

It is entirely up to you whether you wish to accept this offer - if you prefer to decline and do not wish to take part, my lord will take no offence. The offer is made to you freely.

Yours,

Revel

Herald of Barien

Cut or tear off this strip to have a completely IC document

OC Note: Come to the Skirmish Field (beyond the Sentinel Gate) between 5:30pm and 6:00pm on Friday prior to time-in to receive your token and invite if you want to take part. IC you will have received these items from a herald of Barien prior to time-in.

---

Dear Esteemed Citizen,

I am Revel, herald of Barien, the Iron Duke. At this upcoming summit a tourney will be organised in the name of the Lord of Crossroads on Saturday evening, and mortals will have to compete with one another to gain favours to enter the tourney. As a mortal who holds favour with the realm of summer, I am asking for your assistance in adjudicating the run up to the tournament, as the heralds will not be able to be present in Anvil for the entire duration to do so.

What I am requesting is that you ensure the correct spirit is enforced in the competition for the favours to enter the tourney. The rules are thus;

- Favours should only be won and lost through planned combats (duels, tourneys etc.) - no trading, purchasing or theft
- Competitors should not turn down a challenge from another competitor
- Before any combat competitors should determine how many favours are being wagered - any challenge should result in at least 1 favour being won/lost, but higher stakes can be agreed
- Competitors should not repeatedly challenge the same person; once a bout is concluded the challengers should fight others before challenging each other again

- Once a competitor has no favours remaining they cannot re-enter the competition and are effectively out of the running

It is not my expectation that you witness or judge all bouts, but watch for any flagrant rulebreaking and be available to adjudicate disputes and suchlike if they arise.

As recompense should you take up this offer you will be given a free invitation to compete in the Pinnacle Tourney, to be either used for yourself or given to another person of your choosing.

Should you wish to take me up on this offer, one of the heralds will be available prior to the formal start of the summit. You will be given your invitation and a token to show that you speak with the authority of the Iron Duke on the matter of this tourney. Before the beginning of the tourney you will be given the chance to vouch for the conduct of the competitors or denounce any of them if you feel it necessary based on what you have seen.

It is entirely up to you whether you wish to accept this offer - if you prefer to decline and do not wish to take part, my lord will take no offence. The offer is made to you freely.

Yours,

Revel

Herald of Barien

Cut or tear off this strip to have a completely IC document

OC Note: Come to the Skirmish Field (beyond the Sentinel Gate) between 5:30pm and 6:00pm on Friday prior to time-in to receive your token and invite if you want to take part. IC you will have received these items from a herald of Barien prior to time-in.

---

Dear Esteemed Citizen,

I am Revel, herald of Barien, the Iron Duke. At this upcoming summit a tourney will be organised in the name of the Lord of Crossroads on Saturday evening, and mortals will have to compete with one another to gain favours to enter the tourney. As a mortal who holds favour with the realm of summer, I am asking for your assistance in adjudicating the run up to the tournament, as the heralds will not be able to be present in Anvil for the entire duration to do so.

What I am requesting is that you ensure the correct spirit is enforced in the competition for the favours to enter the tourney. The rules are thus;

- Favours should only be won and lost through planned combats (duels, tourneys etc.) - no trading, purchasing or theft
- Competitors should not turn down a challenge from another competitor
- Before any combat competitors should determine how many favours are being wagered - any challenge should result in at least 1 favour being won/lost, but higher stakes can be agreed
- Competitors should not repeatedly challenge the same person; once a bout is concluded the challengers should fight others before challenging each other again

- Once a competitor has no favours remaining they cannot re-enter the competition and are effectively out of the running

It is not my expectation that you witness or judge all bouts, but watch for any flagrant rulebreaking and be available to adjudicate disputes and suchlike if they arise.

As recompense should you take up this offer you will be given a free invitation to compete in the Pinnacle Tourney, to be either used for yourself or given to another person of your choosing.

Should you wish to take me up on this offer, one of the heralds will be available prior to the formal start of the summit. You will be given your invitation and a token to show that you speak with the authority of the Iron Duke on the matter of this tourney. Before the beginning of the tourney you will be given the chance to vouch for the conduct of the competitors or denounce any of them if you feel it necessary based on what you have seen.

It is entirely up to you whether you wish to accept this offer - if you prefer to decline and do not wish to take part, my lord will take no offence. The offer is made to you freely.

Yours,

Revel

Herald of Barien

Cut or tear off this strip to have a completely IC document

OC Note: Come to the Skirmish Field (beyond the Sentinel Gate) between 5:30pm and 6:00pm on Friday prior to time-in to receive your token and invite if you want to take part. IC you will have received these items from a herald of Barien prior to time-in.

---

Dear Esteemed Citizen,

I am Revel, herald of Barien, the Iron Duke. At this upcoming summit a tourney will be organised in the name of the Lord of Crossroads on Saturday evening, and mortals will have to compete with one another to gain favours to enter the tourney. As a mortal who holds favour with the realm of summer, I am asking for your assistance in adjudicating the run up to the tournament, as the heralds will not be able to be present in Anvil for the entire duration to do so.

What I am requesting is that you ensure the correct spirit is enforced in the competition for the favours to enter the tourney. The rules are thus;

- Favours should only be won and lost through planned combats (duels, tourneys etc.) - no trading, purchasing or theft
- Competitors should not turn down a challenge from another competitor
- Before any combat competitors should determine how many favours are being wagered - any challenge should result in at least 1 favour being won/lost, but higher stakes can be agreed
- Competitors should not repeatedly challenge the same person; once a bout is concluded the challengers should fight others before challenging each other again

- Once a competitor has no favours remaining they cannot re-enter the competition and are effectively out of the running

It is not my expectation that you witness or judge all bouts, but watch for any flagrant rulebreaking and be available to adjudicate disputes and suchlike if they arise.

As recompense should you take up this offer you will be given a free invitation to compete in the Pinnacle Tourney, to be either used for yourself or given to another person of your choosing.

Should you wish to take me up on this offer, one of the heralds will be available prior to the formal start of the summit. You will be given your invitation and a token to show that you speak with the authority of the Iron Duke on the matter of this tourney. Before the beginning of the tourney you will be given the chance to vouch for the conduct of the competitors or denounce any of them if you feel it necessary based on what you have seen.

It is entirely up to you whether you wish to accept this offer - if you prefer to decline and do not wish to take part, my lord will take no offence. The offer is made to you freely.

Yours,

Revel

Herald of Barien

Cut or tear off this strip to have a completely IC document

OC Note: Come to the Skirmish Field (beyond the Sentinel Gate) between 5:30pm and 6:00pm on Friday prior to time-in to receive your token and invite if you want to take part. IC you will have received these items from a herald of Barien prior to time-in.

---

Dear Esteemed Citizen,

I am Revel, herald of Barien, the Iron Duke. At this upcoming summit a tourney will be organised in the name of the Lord of Crossroads on Saturday evening, and mortals will have to compete with one another to gain favours to enter the tourney. As a mortal who holds favour with the realm of summer, I am asking for your assistance in adjudicating the run up to the tournament, as the heralds will not be able to be present in Anvil for the entire duration to do so.

What I am requesting is that you ensure the correct spirit is enforced in the competition for the favours to enter the tourney. The rules are thus;

- Favours should only be won and lost through planned combats (duels, tourneys etc.) - no trading, purchasing or theft
- Competitors should not turn down a challenge from another competitor
- Before any combat competitors should determine how many favours are being wagered - any challenge should result in at least 1 favour being won/lost, but higher stakes can be agreed
- Competitors should not repeatedly challenge the same person; once a bout is concluded the challengers should fight others before challenging each other again

- Once a competitor has no favours remaining they cannot re-enter the competition and are effectively out of the running

It is not my expectation that you witness or judge all bouts, but watch for any flagrant rulebreaking and be available to adjudicate disputes and suchlike if they arise.

As recompense should you take up this offer you will be given a free invitation to compete in the Pinnacle Tourney, to be either used for yourself or given to another person of your choosing.

Should you wish to take me up on this offer, one of the heralds will be available prior to the formal start of the summit. You will be given your invitation and a token to show that you speak with the authority of the Iron Duke on the matter of this tourney. Before the beginning of the tourney you will be given the chance to vouch for the conduct of the competitors or denounce any of them if you feel it necessary based on what you have seen.

It is entirely up to you whether you wish to accept this offer - if you prefer to decline and do not wish to take part, my lord will take no offence. The offer is made to you freely.

Yours,

Revel

Herald of Barien