

Information for the owner of Wunderkind

You find your income from Wunderkind this season less than you would expect by 3 crowns. Making some inquiries – it is a very big business, so it's hard to be aware of the details of all aspects of it – you find out that the loss is due to a failure by another company, Partwurk, to deliver an order of parts that had been paid for: and so a loss had been made sorting that out, etc. Feel free to roleplay the details of this order as you like, in the normal manner for roleplaying the operation of personal resources.

Upon inquiring, you learn that Partwurk is a small and young company, founded two years ago by the brilliant Gretel von Holberg. She died half a year ago in a tragic accident: since then, her sister Katarina – a bookseller - has by all accounts been struggling to keep the company afloat. There are lots of mutterings from those who have received payments and orders late or not at all from Partwurk: the word on the street is that it is having some severe liquidity problems.

Katarina herself has not been seen in some weeks. There are rumours she has fled Holberg...
