

Algar of Ashenhall,

I first must apologise for my delay in writing to you, our campaign in Spiral came across some difficulty, preventing the safe movement of the corpse and accoutrements of Dogri Thulebane.

I have had the body moved to the borders of Spiral, in the region of Apulus, in the small cove known as the Bluehaven. I have sent one of my trusted counsel, Necthan, to oversee the deal there. Treat them as you would treat myself.

I trust that I do not need to warn you of the nature of Spiral as it currently is. There is nothing that we can do about that with regards to the deal. I trust that you will do everything in your power to stay safe should you manage to journey to the Bluehaven.

I look forward to making more deals with you in the future.

Yours in Fidelity,
Speaker Morna of the Wave Sweeper
