

It is expected now, the sense of ancestral voices getting louder when you pick up Defiance around this time of year. This time there are many, many different voices, all urging you to remember. “Remember the uprising. Remember it wasn't just the Mines. Remember it wasn't just Varushka”.

When you put it down and walk away, even then, the echoes of those among them who hate Dawnish nobles and yeomen alike linger.

The place they want you to go to is clear. An old logging camp, near some of the strangest trees the Empire has, Wickmoor, Weirwater.

This is not an easy task to do though. Weirwater has had a husk army run through it - will it be safe enough for the ceremony to be held? You should talk to Grud, in order to make plans

Role-playing Effect if applicable: You may play increased hearing of Ancestral Voices during this Equinox, both ones described in this dream and any others of your own choosing, if you wish.

Mechanical Effect: if applicable: Example.