

To the person packing this:

Please include a handful of small change in Rings and, like, a four-Crown piece with this letter. Scruffy old coins are best, like, if you've got any with patina on them, maybe?

If I had to ask the database for it, I'd say... 4C19r.

To the honourable son of Laziel, Scevola
From Suran's knight Manoun, mother of Lokal:

My child is restored well in this warm spring, the cool Veroignois rains giving health in their way. I thank Kobol for preserving the life of a wounded warrior! And I thank you with all my loving friendship for the service you have done me. Lokal would write, but their handwriting was more knightly than courtly even before their injuries.

Know that because of your good service, I have spoken well of your people among my own, and shall always. You, and the other daughters and sons of Laziel, will be welcome in my home for as long as our peoples are at peace. I include a small token of our thanks to you; regrettably, it seems likely that we will not need Imperial currency for much longer, so I have included all that I had.

It is true that in the Confederacy, the priests speak poorly of Imperials. I cannot gainsay the wickedness known and oft reported in Imperial lands, but I can remind them of those diamonds who shine all the brighter for the unfortunate happenstance of their forging.

I will keep you in my prayers, always; as will Lokal. As their mother, I will make sure they do! May your Gods be with you.

Fare you well, as I fare.
